WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA:

A small but active weather system will be moving across the northern California today. Plenty of moisture is available for this system to produce cloudiness and showers from the Bay Area northeastward across the Sacramento Valley. A few morning thunderstorms are also expected in those areas. Later this afternoon as the system moves further northeast, conditions will stabilize and dry out somewhat in the southern portion of the northern California . Afternoon and evening thunderstorms are likely to develop in the northern areas as the system arrives there. Locally heavy rain, some possible hail and gusty, erratic winds will accompany those storms. Starting Wednesday, a strong high pressure ridge will move over the northern California as it stretches northwest out of the desert southwest over California into Saturday. Gusty southwest to west winds will develop Wednesday afternoon behind this system and could significantly fan any ongoing or new fire starts. The high will also bring much drier conditions with a marked warming trend. Warmest inland areas will be 100-105 by the weekend, which is pretty seasonable for this time of year. Relatively light northerly winds will also be in place. The flow over the region will become more southerly Sunday into early next week for a return of monsoon moisture working its way northward with a chance of daily isolated afternoon and evening thunderstorms, especially over the eastern mountains and possibly the northern mountains as well.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

A strong high pressure ridge will nudge temperatures back into well above normal territory beginning Wednesday. By the middle to latter portions of the week, valley and lower foothill locations will see readings in the 100-104 degree range with temperatures close to 120 in the low deserts. A prevailing northwesterly flow will produce daily afternoon winds of 15-25 mph near Point Conception and the rest of the central Coast region. There may also be localized north winds of 15-30 mph possible in the Santa Ynez Range this evening into the overnight hours. Otherwise, expect light winds over the rest of the region this week. Despite the heat, relative humidity minimums will generally remain in the teens this week. By the weekend, a surge of moisture may reach the southern part of the state. Isolated showers and thunderstorms may reach the southern deserts and San Diego County Saturday. Right now, the best chance of precipitation looks to be Sunday when scattered showers and thunderstorms may be possible across the mountains and deserts east of I-15 and across portions of the Sierras. Less convection is expected by Monday, but a chance of precipitation may linger in the Sierras through much of next week. The hot weather will last into the weekend, and possibly through the end of the month.

Situational Summary

On January 17, 2014 Governor Edmund G. Brown proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for drought conditions. The State Operation Center (SOC) is activated to implement objectives in support of the Governor's priorities. The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in extremely dry conditions in many parts of the State. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. If conditions continue severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. Negative economic impacts will also result.

The drought could result in severe impacts to the municipal water supplies, wells, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities for several months. The SOC continues to be activated to monitor the situation statewide, and support regional and local operational areas.

- On 7/15/14 the State Water Board passed new regulation to reduce out door urban water use. The regulation makes an exception for health and safety circumstances. Local agencies can ask courts to fine water users up to $500.00 a day and the SWRCB can fine water agencies up to $10,000.00 per day. SWRCB will update FAQ's this week.

- Reservoir Levels (% capacity): Reservoir Levels as of July 21 remain low, including: Don Pedro 47%; Exchequer 23%; Folsom Lake 43%; Lake Oroville 38%; Millerton Lake 56%; New Melones 28%; Pine Flat 23%; San Luis 26%; Lake Shasta 37%; and Trinity Lake 39%. An update of water levels at other smaller reservoirs is also available.

Situational Summary

- On July 15, 2014, CDFA in partnership with U.C. Davis Center for Watershed Sciences released a study titled Economic Analysis of the 2014 Drought for California Agriculture. The study indicates the drought in California is the third most severe on record and is responsible for the greatest water loss ever seen for the state's agriculture, and river water for Central Valley farms has been reduced by roughly one-third, according. Direct costs to agriculture total about $1.5 billion (which include revenue losses of $1 billion and $0.5 billion in additional pumping costs). This net revenue loss is about 3% of the state's total agricultural value

- The 2014 Governor Drought Task Force continues to meet regularly to take actions that conserve water and coordinate state response to the drought.
- Cal OES continues to gather drought-related costs from state agencies and local governments.
